PRESIDENT'S NOTES

1994 is going to be an exciting year for Friends of Genealogy. Dr. Woody Wilson will be our speaker on the 5th of February and will discuss the history of medicine as applied to genealogy.

Mark MARCH 5, 1994 on your calendar. Our yearly seminar and book fair is scheduled for that date, featuring DESMOND WALLS ALLEN. The theme this year is MAKING YOUR ANCESTORS TALK. We are happy to have Desmond as our speaker and looking forward to a fantastic seminar. BE THERE! The registration and information form is attached in front of the JOURNAL.

In April, a representative from the Ft. Jessup Commemorative Park will discuss the early history and settlement of the Sabine Strip. Come and find your "outlaws."

On May 7, Mrs. Peggy Fox will speak to us about what resources are available at The Harold B. Simpson Confederate Research Center, Hill College, Hillsboro, Texas. Mrs. Fox is the assistant director of the center. This is one place where one can find a wealth of information.

And that's just part of the year. Remember, if you have articles for the JOURNAL, let us know.

Our new book, THE BEGAT-itudes, A Compilation of Family Origins, Volume I, is now available - $15.00 - 300 pages of family group sheets - indexed. Send an extra $1.50 for postage.

Again, BE SURE TO ATTEND THE SEMINAR!

Thanks, everyone, for a job well done.

Sincerely,

Jane Leslie Newberry

Confederate Records Crumble Away

From The Confederate Gazette, John Perry, Editor

Southern culture has been besieged on many fronts in recent years, but the biggest loser may well be the records of the Confederate government. The records, which include payrolls, hospital records, prison records, governmental correspondence, bills passed by the Confederate Congress, and the all important Confederate Army muster rolls, are simply being allowed to decay. Over 5,730 cubic feet of Confederate records are held hostage in the National Archives destined to eventually fade completely away.

After the Confederate government fell, the official Confederate Government records, that had been well maintained by Inspector Adjutant General Samuel COOPER, passed into the hands of Federal forces. Initially, each document was stamped, "Rebel Archives," and they were held in the War Department in Washington, D.C. Today the records are kept in the National Archives' central facility on Pennsylvania Avenue in Washington.

The records are badly deteriorating according to various Archives' personnell. Archivist Dr. Michael MEIR stated, "They're going to seed quickly." The records are being kept in stacks of ordinary cardboard boxes with no precautions being taken to preserve them. There are two main reasons why the records are in such a state.

Part of the problem is the documents themselves. The Confederacy suffered through many shortages and one major shortage was paper. Toward the end of the war, paper was virtually not available. Southern newspapers had to resort to printing issues on the backs of wallpaper.

The Confederate government used captured Union paper or made its own lesser grade paper. Ink was also very scarce. Many different generals had their own recipe for making ink to do their required paper work. Ink was often made from ingredients such as vinegar and pine bark.

The other problem is a political one. The National Archives is the official depository of all documents relating to American history, from 1776, to the recent Gulf War.

Federal agencies, from the Department of Agriculture to the Veterans Administration and commissions of all kinds, annually deposit approximately 4 billion documents. With limited air conditioned and climate control space, each agency and commission lobbies for its documents to be preserved.

Unfortunately, there is no active Confederate Government to lobby for proper care of its documents. As put by archivist Bill LIND, "There's nobody to speak for the dead....My ancestors were Yankees, but I think it's a crime that those records (Confederate) are sitting there with nobody to defend them," LIND said.

Perhaps of all the records that are decaying, the greatest loss will be muster rolls of the Confederate Army. There are literally hundreds of thousands of muster rolls wher Confederate commanders kept tabs on companies and regiments. The rolls were drawn up every two months and recorded were the names of those active, those that were sick, absent or injured, the condition of the company's supplies, arms, and discipline and even battles, skirmishes, and marches.

"They (muster rolls) are an absolute irreplaceable resource," according to Robert KRICK, chief historian at the Fredericksburg and Spotsylvania National Military Park. Without these records, serious research cannot be done. "They are an invaluable piece of our historical heritage," KRICK said.

Unfortunately, the Archives does not have any plans to even microfilm the documents. Pointing out budgetary constraints, the Archives claims it does not have the funds to either film or preserve the documents. Last year, however, the Archives did find the funds to preserve the muster rolls of the 54th Massachusetts, the black regiment fictionalized in the movie "Glory."

In the sterile atmosphere of the Archives preservation lab the 54th's records were painstakingly restored, microfilmed and then encapsulated in plastic film to last forever. Unfortunately, the Confederate records are today not "politically correct" and continue to rot away to nothing in ordinary cardboard boxes in the Archives basement.

A new state of the art Archives II building, with all the correct climate controls, has been constructed in College Park, Maryland. Again, without political clout, Confederate records will not be moved. What will be moved? Among other records, the valuable memoirs of the now defunct Federal Supply Service, which handled important janitorial matters for the Federal government.

What can be done? It will probably require Congressional action to appropriate the necessary funds to preserve our heritage. Write your Congressional representatives before it is too late!!

In the 19th Century, students could attend institutions of higher learning in Caddo Parish for less than $30 a term--but there was a catch. It was required to pay the tuition in gold. The student was also required to bring his own washcloth and basin. Early Shreveport schools included the Collegiate Institute and Shreveport University.

THE SANBORN MAPS
An Excellent Reference
by Reuben Feuge

A map can become an important tool whether modeling the prototype, or researching the past. The Sanborn maps were started by D.A. SANBORN, a civil engineer, when asked to conduct a survey for the Aetna Insurance Company. Mr. SANBORN was so impressed that, in 1876, he founded the Sanborn Map and Publishing Co., LTD. In 1902, it was incorporated into its present form, the Sanborn Map Co., Inc.

These maps have become important reference material for various government agencies, private companies, and the public utilities. Since they were originally prepared for the insurance rating services, they contain information such as water lines, hydrant locations, and other information needed for the insurance rating. In addition, structures, streets, and rail lines are shown. Most of the mapping was started in the early 1890s and the company claims that any town with over 1,000 inhabitants has been mapped.

Locating the Sanborn maps is not difficult as many major libraries carry them. Sanborn's covering the New Orleans area are at the main branch. In addition, the university libraries have copies on file; sets showing most other cities in Louisiana are also on file. Both libraries have bound volumes from various times, as well as complete sets on microfilm.

The Library of Congress carries a complete set of all the Sanborn maps covering all cities in the United States. They are arranged by city and state, and located in the map reading room. There is also a book available to assist you in your research: Fire Insurance Maps in the Library of Congress: Plans of North American Cities and Towns produced by the Sanborn Map Company, 1980, pg 773 (S/N 030-004-00018-1) $29.00. This would be especially useful if you are studying various cities across the United States. Sanborn can provide you with any of their maps: Sanborn Map Company, 629 Fifth Street, Pelham, New York, 10803. These are black and white prints on 17"x22" paper. Scale accuracy is very good.

If using a bound volume, you will have the advantage of having the structures color-coded. Unfortunately, the newer maps and microfilm are not color-coded. The different colors represented the material used in the construction of the building and I have provided a chart to assist you if you are using the older bound volumes:

Yellow = Wood
Pink = Brick or Tile
Blue = Stone, Concrete, or Concrete Block
Green = Iron

CAROLINA NOBILITY

Lord ASHLEY, with the aid of his secretary John LOCKE, drafted a curious document called "The Fundamental Constitutions of Carolina." This was the longest, most fantastic and reactionary of all colonial frames of government, and created a Carolina nobility:

BARON, and Lord of the Manor: Any one who purchased 30,000 acres.

CASSIQUE: Anyone who owned 1,200 acres.

LANDGRAVE - a German title: Anyone who owned 20,000 acres.

The common people could elect members of a house of commons but no bill could become law unless consented to by a majority of the barons, cassiques, landgraves, and the proprietors (large extent of land with all governing powers given by a king to an individual).

Samuel Eliot Morison, The History of the American People, Vol. 1 (New York: The New American Library, Inc., 1972) p 142.

Why is Buckinghamshire like a drover's goad? Because it runs into Oxon and Herts!

Some famous men connected with "Bucks" are John NEWTON, John MILTON and Benjamin DISRAELI.

Cheltenham in Gloucestershire has (1886) a spring of saline waters and became a fashionable watering place dating from 1716. The waters were believed to help men feel hungry and strong. George III drank from these waters.

CONFEDERATE TRAINING CAMP IS OPEN AGAIN AFTER 7 YEARS

Camp Moore was closed in 1986 during budget crunch.

BY JANET MCCONNAUGHEY

The Confederacy's largest training camp--a place where troops from three states brawled until they were sent to the front--is once more open to the public.

Camp Moore is the one spot where the Confederate Army tried to create a federal-style Army. Other states had several local camps each, historian Sam HYDE said.

"They found it beneficial to keep the Louisiana, Mississippi and Arkansas boys separate because they tended to fight so much among themselves," he added.

Between 70,000 and 80,000 raw recruits were drilled into soldiers at the camp outside the town of Tangipahoa, north of Hammond near the Mississippi border.

"Gen. Edward D. TRACY said he needed to move the troops out of Camp Moore quickly so they could fight the Yankees before killing themselves," Said HYDE, an assistant professor at the University of Southwestern Louisiana.

It may also have been the only camp where ranger were taught to bushwhack Union Soldiers, HYDE said.

The camp was among 22 historical sites closed in September 1986 because of state budget problems. Some reopened. But it took the dedication of two men whose fathers opened the camp and its museum to get Camp Moore back open. It reopened to the public June 1, 1993.

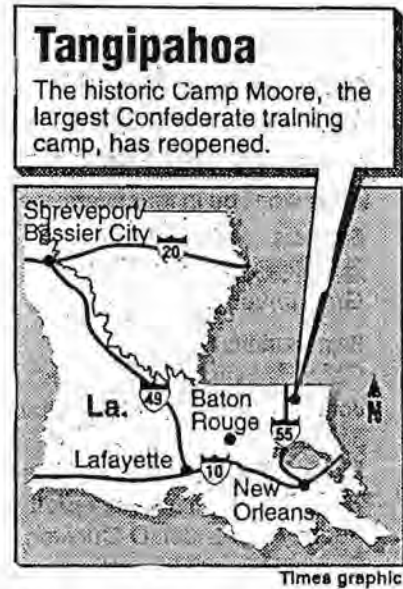

Camp Moore was founded six weeks after Louisiana's secession from the Union in January 1861. It flew the flag of the Independent Republic of Louisiana- a dozen or so horizontal strips of red, yellow and white- until the Confederacy was formed.

Units which trained there included parts of the Louisiana Tigers, the Washington Artillery, the 4th Louisiana Regiment, which started with nearly 1,000 men and lost 95 of them during the war, and were merged with the 11th Louisiana Regiment after a disastrous battle in Franklin, Teen.

The 11th was shipped off to Tennessee in a rush in 1862, after it led a whiskey riot that took three days to quell, HYDE said.

A train loaded with whiskey had stopped near the cap. When the troops learned its cargo, they broke in and started passing the liquor around.

RUSSELL CARVER WESTMORELAND RAYBORN
Seeking info on Sarah Ann RUSSELL (1825-1900) who married Robert William CARVER (1820-1896). Marriage date & place unknown (they were my g g grandparents). The 2 children who lived were Calvin Green CARVER who married Mary Elizabeth WESTMORELAND (1856-1887)
in 1872; and Martha CARVER (1863-1892/93) who married Hesakiah RAYBORN in 1887. All were of Livingston Parish LA. Hesakiah's parents were Henry & Lucinda RAYBORN. Sarah was pat Indian, perhaps Cherokee, & could speak the language of her tribe (suspect Louisiana Choctaw). Some of this family were early members of the Macedonia Baptist Church north of Holden LA on Hwy 1036. Robert William CARVER could have been born in LA, AL or
TN. Supposedly he ran away from home at age 17 & came south from TN (or elsewhere?). Some say he had a 1st wife named Mary from Pickens Co AL. Robert & Sarah moved to Vernon Parish LA during the 1890's. In 1881 the Calvin Green CARVERs followed the George Washington WESTMORELANDS to Vernon Parish. Calvin returned later to bring his parents to Vernon Parish, where they died. They are buried in old Mt. Pleasant Cemetery, New Llano, Vernon Parish. I really need the parentage of both Sarah and Robert CARVER.

Greetings from Houston, Texas!

The 1994 National Genealogical Society Conference In The States, hosted by Clayton Library Friends, will be held in Houston, Texas, June 1-4, 1994. The theme for this conference will be EXPLORING A NATION OF IMMIGRANTS—HOUSTON STYLE. Special emphasis will be on the building of America by its various ethnic groups and Native American cultures.

The conference will offer something for everyone, with sessions that focus on history, records and repositories, immigration and naturalization, migration patterns, land records, religious groups, methodology and problem solving, organization of materials, the use of computers in genealogy and much more.

There will also be exceptional opportunities for research for persons attending the conference. The Clayton Library is one of the nation's major genealogical libraries, and the conference committee has arranged for daily trips to this outstanding facility. In addition to Clayton Library, the Houston Public Library System also offers its other special collections at its central downtown facility. Additional resources available to conference participants are those special collections at local universities such as Rice, Texas Southern, Houston Baptist and the University of Houston. There are also numerous local historical societies and museums who will welcome visitors during the conference.

Your assistance is asked by including conference information in one of your upcoming membership publications. A poster advertising the conference and an information brochure is enclosed for your use in any publication you wish to make of this event. Persons interested in receiving further information may contact Clayton Library Friends at P. O. Box 271078, Houston, Texas, 77277, or by calling the host chairman, Trevia Wooster Beverly at (713) 864-6862.

Make your plans to join us in Houston in June 1994.
