THE GENIE is published quarterly. Each member receives four issues for each year of membership. All material published in THE GENIE is compiled and contributed by the members. THE GENIE exchanges periodicals with other genealogical-historical organizations publishing data of general interest. We regret that we cannot exchange with limited family organizations, but invite them to send samples of their publications for brief review, since many of these family organizations are of great value in information on the family covered by them.

PRESIDENT'S PAGE

Dear Members & Friends:

Last January, Desmond Walls Allen gave up writing the "Ancestor Hunting" column for The Times. The Times was at that time re-designing its Living section, and a decision was made not to continue the column under a different authorship. The people at The Times felt that there was not a large enough audience to support it. The loss of "Ancestor Hunting" is a real blow to the Ark-LA-Tex Genealogical Association and to all lovers of family history in the region. The column was an excellent educational source for new comers and experienced researchers, alike. It served as a vehicle for queries and for news of events. It publicized sources of information unique to our area and genealogical societies across the Ark-La-Tex. Our seminar last year owed much of its success to the publicity we got in the column.

I urge all members of the Association and all family historians in the area to contact The Times. Let them know that we miss "Ancestor Hunting" and would like to have it restored. A would-be successor to Desmond Allen has stepped forward. I believe we can still continue the column, if enough people call for it.

Excitement is building for our trip to Salt Lake City in November. I have been on several research trips organized through the Association. These trips have been the most wonderful experiences both for the information that I have found and for the fellowship of travelling together. This trip to Salt Lake City will be a grand pilgrimage, I am sure. Look for information on registration in this issue. You do not have to be a member to join us. Remember the deadline for registration is May 1, 1998.

Preparations for our annual August Seminar are well under way. We are very excited to have Dr. George Schweitzer for our speaker this year. Dr. Schweitzer is one of the leading authorities on American genealogy. His guide books on family history are genealogists' Bibles. (Dr. Schweitzer's guide to research in Tennessee rode on the seat of the car with me, when I travelled there in 1995. I would have been lost without it.) It is when Dr. Schweitzer stands up before an audience, however, that his lifetime of scholarly research really lives and breathes. For many of his lectures, Dr. Schweitzer dresses in the costume and adopts the parlance of the period and place he describes to take his audience there. His great skill as a teacher has made him the most popular genealogical speaker in the country.

The seminar will be held August 8, 1998 at the Sheraton Shreveport. Dr. Schweitzer's topics of discussion will be AMERICAN LAND GRANTS (done in frontier costume), FINDING YOUR ANCESTOR'S PARENTS (methods for finding another generation), and GENEALOGY IN THE SOUTHEASTERN US (done in Colonial costume). Look for details on registration in this issue. We are urging everyone to register early because the seating is limited. I am really looking forward to the show. Come and join us.

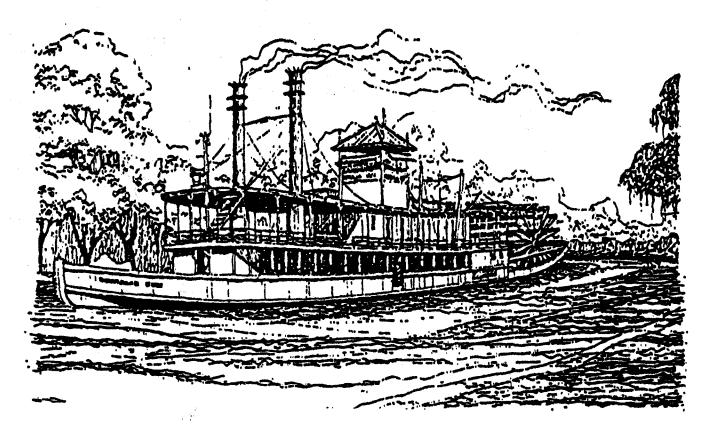

Sincerely,

Read C. Macheure

THE TOWN OF GILMER, LOUISIANA

By Dale Jennings

The town of Gilmer in Bossier Parish (county) has long since disappeared, no doubt having fallen far short of its potential and the expectations of its founders. Its very existence in the northwest corner of Louisiana has perhaps faded from memory even by secondary account, and indeed may have escaped written history. I have not seen mention of the town other than by contemporaneous record. My revelation as to the existence of Gilmer was through an 1888 Bossier Banner announcement of the death of Doctor Rosborough Washington Vance, at Gilmer.

Gilmer had its roots much deeper in the history of the region than the date of its origin. Prior to its founding in 1873, the place was known as Coushatta Bluffs, which in turn had been the site of an Indian village dating to 1809. "Coushatta Bluffs" or "Coushatta Bluff" can be seen annotated on old maps on the east bank of the Red River between Silver Lake and Dutch John Lake southwest of present-day Plain Dealing. Coushatta Bluffs was included in the purchase of U. S. Government land by James B. Gilmer in 1843. The General Land Office certificate dated April 1, 1843, which I have in my possession, entitled "James Blair Gilmer of Claiborne, Louisiana" to Section 35, Township 22, Range 14, containing five hundred and eighty-four acres. (By that date, Gilmer officially resided in Bossier, that parish having been created from a portion of Claiborne Parish just over a month earlier.) The penned identifying notation on the back of the certificate reads "Couchatta Town Site and Couchatta Plant." This suggests that a town of that description had once existed there. If not there, then perhaps at Coushatta Landing on the river just to the south. Coushatta Landing is believed to have been the site of the Coushatta Indian village found by the American expedition exploring that region of the Louisiana Purchase in 1806, and was one of the "landings" for the vast Gilmer plantation operations on Bossier's upper Red River. Coushatta Plantation was one of the many James Gilmer plantations which came into the hands of his three daughters after his death in 1856. The daughters were Mary Boutwell, married to Doctor Samuel W. ("Whitfield") Vance; Martha George, who would marry Patrick V. O'Neill; and Eliza Lewis, who would marry Colonel Rufus Y. Graves. Eliza and Mary died young, leaving minor children. Rufus Graves and Whitfield Vance became tutors to their respective children, heirs to their mothers' considerable legacies.

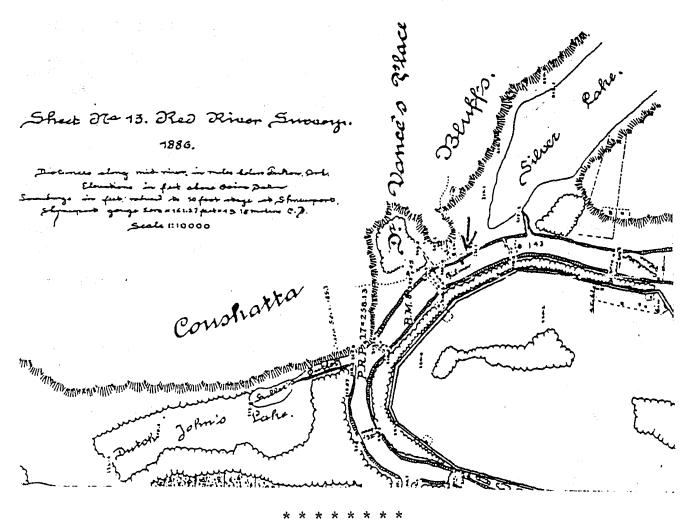

In 1873, Martha and the two tutors entered into an agreement to found a town at the river bluff and sell off town lots. The town site was laid off into fifty-four lots, with six streets, which were named Washington, Bossier, Main, Lee, Davis and Jackson. The description in the lot conveyances was "The Town of Gilmer, formerly known as Coushatta Bluffs." Whitfield Vance was designated by Martha as agent for sale of her interest in the lots, and all lots were sold by January, 1874. The town plat was recorded at the court house in November, 1886. Over one-third of the lots were bought by the Gilmer founders. Doctor S. W. Vance purchased lots for and in the names of his two minor daughters. They were Sallie Eliza Vance, by his first marriage to Mary Boutwell Gilmer, and Mary Boutwell Gilmer Vance, by his second marriage to Sallie Eliza (James) Gayle, a widow. Doctor Vance had married cousins. Their mothers had been Gilmer first cousins. R. Y. Graves also bought lots as tutor for his children, and Martha O'Neill purchased lots for herself. Others who became original Gilmer lot owners were Peachy R. Gilmer, Rosborough W. Vance, Joseph P. Vance, David A. Davidson, William H. Thompson, Nathan W. Sentell, James A. Ford, James A. Herron, Thomas Miller, Henry Miller, James R. Cavett, Joseph C. Beasley and John H. Nattin, all Bossier Parish residents. The lot buying was evidently speculative with nearly all the purchasers being prominent area men who each bought two or more lots. Most of these same men bought lots in the new "railroad towns" later. The only indication by the 1880 census that any of the lot owners may have lived in Gilmer was the recording of the consecutive area households of Doctor R. W. Vance and Henry Miller. However, Doctor Vance (Dr. Whitfield Vance's bachelor brother, who was said to have died at Gilmer) probably lived on his property nearby, rather than on one of his three Gilmer lots. Henry Miller, a twenty-seven-year-old mulatto laborer with family, probably did live in Gilmer. In February, 1891, Miller, then a Caddo Parish resident, sold his lot "together with all buildings and improvements thereon, acquired from Whit Vance and situated in Gilmer, Bossier Parish." The sale was to James A. Thigpen and W. E. Maples and was "made for the consideration of the sum of services rendered to said Miller by said Maples and Thigpen in the case of State of Louisiana vs Henry Miller (the vendor) herein charged with lying in wait and shooting with a dangerous weapon with intent to kill and murder."

The Gilmer town lots were sold and resold through the remainder of the nineteenth century and just into the twentieth century. Gilmer may have been inhabited to some extent, but there is little indication by the resale value of the lots or otherwise that it was ever developed. The site was designated as "Gilmer" by the river boat steersman, J. Frank Glenn, in his 1879 and 1890 listings of landings on Red River from Shreveport to Fulton, Arkansas (LSU-S archives). It is unclear whether the designation was for the town or only for the river landing there. Sheet No. 13 of the U. S. Government Red River Survey of 1886 gave the landmarks "Coushatta Bluffs" and "Dr. Vance's Place" preeminence over the minuscule "Gilmer." It appears from the survey map that the latter probably identified a landing rather than a town. "Coushatta Place," just down river, annotated with the same size and type script, seemingly identifies the landing for the Caddo Parish side of the Coushatta plantation or "place." It is identified in Glenn's landings as "Coushatta" in 1879, and as "Coushatta 'Store'" in 1890.

The founding of Gilmer seemed to have been well timed. The head of the "Great Raft," which clogged the Red River, was located just above Coushatta Bluffs. The tortuous bypasses around the raft were by way of systems of lakes and bayous parallel to the river. The clearing and reclearing of reformed sections of the raft had gone on for decades. A final assault begun in 1872 at last in 1873 cleared the river all the way through its northernmost point above Gilmer. The importance of river transportation would wane as the railroads began to criss-cross the region. The laying of the Shreveport and Arkansas Railway track miles to the east the next decade gave rise to the town of Plain Dealing. It was Doctor Whitfield Vance's son-in-law, Samuel J. Zeigler, who would be first vice-president of the railway company and the founder of Plain Dealing on the "Cotton Belt" line. Plain Dealing prospered as the shipping point and trade center for the area, reducing such old surrounding towns as Red Land, Cottage Grove and Collinsburg to "dots on the map." Gilmer doesn't seem to have ever even rated that distinction, which is no doubt why its existence (if it did exist) has been lost to history.

The James Gilmer General Land Office certificate, as well as other land documents and Confederate States of America currency, bonds and payment vouchers, were given to me by John F. (Jack) Geary. Mr. Geary is a Samuel W. Vance descendant who was raised in Bossier and Caddo Parishes and now lives in McLean, Virginia. The materials were passed down to him through his Vance, Gilmer and Logan family lines. He desires that they stay in this area, and has concurred that a good representation should be placed in the Bossier Parish Library's Historical Center. Others having materials significant to the history of Bossier Parish are encouraged to do the same, for their preservation and enjoyment by all.

SEARCHING FOR CALVIN (VANCE)

By Dale Jennings

(Dale and Larri Jennings live at 194 Vance Road, Benton, LA)

Who was Calvin Vance? The first William Calvin Vance was my wife Larri's great grandfather—but by what circumstances was he put on this earth? The most definitive clue to his identity is the oft-repeated fact that he married his cousin, Nina Vance. Although unsuccessful thus far in solving this family puzzle, I have broken ground, and marked the trail for any descendant who might wish to take up the search.

We had been married almost a quarter of a century when I became interested in the Vance family. I had heard of Calvin from my mother-in-law, Larry Arnold (Vance) Hunt. ("Larry" after her father's murdered brother and "Arnold" for her mother's maiden name.) Her knowledge of the Vances was minimal. Calvin had died before she was born and her father, William Calvin Vance, Jr., in premature poor health, died suddenly while pushing her in her stroller. "Miss Larry" knew that her Vance grandparents had come to Louisiana from South Carolina right after the Civil War. Also, that Calvin had married his cousin, Nina, and had owned three large plantations on Red River here in Bossier Parish (county). She was more familiar with her mother's Arnolds, and had known her grandfather Arnold well. We still have the sword that he carried as a young cavalry lieutenant in the Civil War. Miss Larry said she believed her grandfather Vance had also been an officer in the war--a captain, she thought.

A few years ago, Larri and I visited the Spring Street Museum in neighboring Shreveport. A map on the wall drew my attention. It was an 1868 government map of the Red River waterway, which indicated some of the river plantations and their owners. I asked my wife who two Doctor Vances were. She said she thought they were some of her Vance kin, but didn't know just what relationship. It occurred to me that the Vances may have been interesting people whose lineage and small role in history may not have been preserved. Impulsively, I declared my intent to find out who they were. (It evolved that five Doctor Vances came to Bossier Parish from South Carolina—the first in 1840.)

I thought it appropriate to start my research with Calvin, the first known Vance ancestor. Census information seemed the most obvious place to start, and we somehow learned that this was available at Shreveport's Shreve Memorial Library. Larri and I visited this facility and were advised how to reference the census microfilm by state, county and page number. We started with the 1860 South Carolina census, indexing "W. C. Vance*" in Charleston. The asterisk alerted us that our subject would be found in other than a Vance household, but I was unprepared to find W. C. Vance among several pages of other names. My first thought was that we had found our Calvin in prison. We had the presence of mind to reverse the reel to the institution name, and were relieved to find that nineteen-year-old Cal was at the Citadel.

Subsequently, I learned a lot about the planter-class family of Larri's great grandmother, Nina. A Greenwood, S.C., newspaper had included the Vances in their 1940's "Our Old Roads" series, which profiled early area families. I had found a Vance article based on this segment while name-indexing old issues of "The Genie," the Ark-La-Tex Genealogical Association's quarterly. From this and many other sources, I was able to flesh out the family. Nina's father, Allen, was the son of Revolutionary War veteran, Nathaniel Vance. Allen moved with his own family from Laurens County to nearby Greenwood in Abbeville County. He had four brothers who married and might have produced Calvin--who would marry his cousin. His brother, William, died well before Calvin was born; John had only a daughter; and Samuel had three daughters and one son, James Kincaid. David had seventeen children by two wives, but Calvin was not among them. Allen's wealthy bachelor brother, Nathaniel Carr Vance, was killed by slaves in 1846. Dying intestate, his property was equally divided among his legal heirs. The settlement of his estate disclosed no heretofore unidentified brothers, or sons of deceased brothers.

Interestingly, I was not the first to attempt to identify Calvin. The contributor of the 1947 Vance segment of the Greenwood Index-Journal's "Our Old Roads" series made this effort: "The names of the parents of W. Calvin ("Cal") Vance are not known positively. A member of the family in Louisiana says his father was Nathaniel Vance but this could not be either the original Nathaniel Vance or Nathaniel Carr Vance, son of the first Nathaniel Vance as Nathaniel Carr Vance had no children." This might reflect the family's ignorance of Calvin's ancestry, or it could be a valid clue. The first Nathaniel had five brothers, most of whom have not been well researched. Had one of their sons been this Nathaniel, he would have been a first cousin to Allen; and his son, hypothetically Calvin, would have been a second cousin to Nina. This ambiguity has caused one of many missed opportunities which have fated the search for Calvin.

Calvin's Bossier Banner obituary states that he was born in Spartanburg, South Carolina. Although Spartanburg County borders on Laurens County, no Vance connection could be made to Spartanburg. His mother may have returned home to that city to have her child. Nonetheless, there is encouragement in the revelation that Calvin had a known past. A birth date of "12/40" was given in Captain Cal Vance's regimental roster profile in "The History of the 2d South Carolina Regiment: 1861-1865." My query to the book's author as to the source for that date has gone unanswered. A family group sheet in the Vance folder of the John Manry Collection, LSU-Shreveport archives, shows a barely discernible typed birth date of February 22, 1840. The opportunity to ask Mr. Manry for his source, and why he erased the date, has long passed. Calvin's tombstone date in Shreveport's Forest Park Cemetery was incorrectly inscribed as 1842. Nina, in fudging her own year of birth from 1851 to 1855 (as appears on her stone) had apparently adjusted Calvin's accordingly. Cal's year of birth, 1840, has been corroborated by correlation of age to date on a variety of documents. He may have been born too late in the 1840 census year to have been enumerated, and even then would not have appeared by name. It was not unexpected that I did not find him that decade, but the consequence of not finding young Calvin in the 1850 census was devastating. I have searched the South and beyond to no avail.

An inquiry to the Citadel disclosed that Cal was admitted to "Arsenal" at age 16 on January 1, 1857; transferred to the Citadel on January 1, 1858; and graduated April 9, 1861. (Arsenal Academy in Columbia was part of the state military academy system and was attended by all freshmen cadets.) Cal's address was given as Abbeville District (county), which at that time included the town of Greenwood within its boundaries. Calvin's obituaries relate that he was one of a detachment of Citadel cadets who fired what arguably was the first shot of the Civil War. In January 1861, following secession, it was learned that the federal merchant steamer, "Star of the West" had been sent south for Charleston with troops and supplies. Its clandestine mission was to reinforce the besieged Fort Sumter on its man-made island at the entrance to Charleston Harbor. The cadets, led by their superintendent under orders from the governor, emplaced their 24-pounder battery on the tip of Morris Island, the closest point of land to Fort Sumter. They cannonaded and scored one hit on the federal vessel, forcing its withdrawal. The state Corps of Cadets was made a part of the state military forces later that month by an act of the legislature. Calvin was said to have been present once again for the bombardment of Sumter on April 12. (John C. Vance, Cal's cousin and Nina's older brother, was also present--at Fort Moultrie. He had been mobilized to Charleston Harbor as a freshman cadet company member at South Carolina College (University of South Carolina) in Columbia.)

Confederate military records indicate that William Calvin Vance was enlisted as "Calvin W. Vance" as a private into Greenwood's "Secession Guards" on April 14, 1861. (Family tradition holds that Allen Vance contributed substantially in financing the company.) Calvin was "joined for duty and enrolled" in Charleston on the 20th, with "miles to place of rendezvous--00." One of his obituaries summarizes: "When the late war broke out he was in the Senior Class of the Citadel, Charleston, S.C., was stationed with Cadets on Morris Island, before and during the bombardment of Fort Sumter. Receiving his diploma immediately after this, he joined Capt. Perryman's Company from Greenwood, S.C., and went to Virginia without even coming home." This is part of an obituary excerpt incorrectly attributed to the Shreveport Times. It was included in Nina's 1931 application for Confederate widow's pension assembled by her lawyer. He stated that Mrs. Vance had in her possession obituaries from the Shreveport Times, Bossier Banner and a Laurens, S.C. paper. (Her obituary clippings apparently had not been marked for identification or had been identified incorrectly.) This excerpt, which may have been from the South Carolina paper, shows good substance and might reveal other information about Calvin if it could be found intact.

In researching Larri's ancestors and collateral kin, I have developed a warm relationship through correspondence and personal contact with other Vance descendants. Of most consequence has been that with William M. (Will) Obering of the Jackson, Wyoming, area. He is researching and writing about his great grandfather, John C. Vance--Cal's cousin, comrade-in-arms, brother-in-law, and life-long friend. Will has generously shared his material, much of which pertains to Calvin and provides insight into his identity. Included were two photographs identified as those of Calvin. One, a youth probably in his early teens, and the other, a gentleman in seeming late middle age. The features of the first matched those of the older Calvin Vance. John T. Manry, a Bossier Parish historian and contemporary, said of "Capt. Cal Vance:" "He was the same wherever one saw him, and will long be remembered." The part in Calvin's light, sandy-looking hair had not changed between the taking of these two pictures. The photograph of the older Calvin contained an inscription on the back: "This is "Uncle Cal" Vance - He was brought up by his uncles (Vances) & most of them willed him a considerable amount of money - His early years were in Greenwood - was a captain of his company at the Citadel - was there at beginning of war - He later went to Louisiana & married his cousin Nina Vance, my grandfather John Vance's sister - He was loved by all & a fine businessman - His daughter Estelle was happily (married) to Mr. McFarland -She had no children." (No descendants to help me there.) Will's mother probably gleaned this information from her mother. Nina Vance Bailey--John's oldest daughter, the namesake of his sister, Nina--who died in 1974, at age 102. Nina Bailey must have known--and come tantalizingly close to telling--the relationship of "Uncle Cal" to John and Nina. I had guessed that Calvin had been raised at least in part by their father, Allen Vance. Allen's brother, John, also lived in Abbeville County and may have helped, but it was Allen who lived in the town of Greenwood. When Calvin was wounded in the Battle of the Wilderness and was furloughed home briefly, he gave his address as "Greenwood, Abbeville District, South Carolina." Allen demonstrated a keen sense of duty in taking on guardianship of an array of both Vance and his wife's (Chappell) minor kin. While in South Carolina in 1995, we searched court house records in Laurens and Abbeville Counties for an award of guardianship, without success. Another county may have had jurisdiction--perhaps Spartanburg. We were in Spartanburg on a Saturday, when the courthouse was closed; the library there would not give up its secrets. How was Calvin able to purchase five thousand acres of land on the Bossier side of the Red River in northwest Louisiana? It is true that Cal received an impressive legacy from Allen's bachelor brother, Doctor James Washington Vance. However, he did not inherit from Nathaniel Carr, Allen or David, and John and Joseph Harrison died after Calvin's manifestation of wealth. He may have had his own set of biological uncles, one or more of whom may have been a wealthy bachelor.

Will Obering also sent me a copy of Captain Vance's letter written home from the Shenandoah Valley to a cousin. Calvin was nearly captured twice during General Jubal Early's ill-fated 1864 Valley campaign. Early's command was thoroughly routed and badly scattered by General Sheridan at Cedar Creek. Calvin and his friend, Sergeant Myer Moses, commandeered a horse and were making their way south through the thickets in the darkness when challenged by a squad of federal pickets. Myer tried to talk his way through by claiming a New York regiment, but failed the query on specifics. At the commencement of this parley, Calvin slipped off the back of the horse and quietly made his escape. It was not considered bad form to so preserve oneself to stay in the war, when better options were not available. Unfortunately, the first page of Cal's letter, which probably contained some family pleasantries, is missing. The next two pages contain war news, to include Calvin's near capture earlier when his picket line was overrun by Union cavalry. I spent considerable time and effort in attempting to decipher a poor copy of the last page. I tried to glean clues from the discussion of a situation back home: "You know I was to get the father whenever I went home, that is if "Suber." If your statement is correct which I dare not doubt the knowing people are badly fooled, for I have been thinking my next would be addressed Mrs. Suber for some time. That infinite confidence that you claim to assert in me will never be betrayed. Write as immediately as you find out. I received a letter from Hattie. She told me that she was pleased with my effort, but I can assure you that Hattie's design was to remit blame to me. I think she was probably impressed with "Sube." (A comment made in jest here caused me to believe that Cal was writing not to Nina, then thirteen, but to Nina's sister. nineteen-year-old Mollie.) "Jno. W___says don't hurry yourself off there is always a chance for you to do well as long as he remains single. I am sorry to hear that Aunt Matilda is in such health, but I hope the coming winter will prove a healing balm." (This was no doubt David Vance's second wife, Matilda, who would die in March, 1865.) "Much love to all Your loving cousin Cal Write soon." Mollie married a Greenwood neighbor, Captain C. A. C. Waller. He would become mayor of Greenwood, state representative and state senator, and a driving force in creating Greenwood County from Abbeville County. She and "Chris" Waller had no children, and when he died in 1922, Mollie also moved to Louisiana. It was probably she who placed the 1898 obituary in the South Carolina (Greenwood?) paper which related that Calvin "went off to Virginia without even coming home."

Calvin served with Company F, 2d South Carolina Regiment, from the Battle of First Manassas (Bull Run) through the last great battle at Bentonville, North Carolina, against Lieutenant Vance was promoted to captain of his company when his company commander was killed at Gettysburg in July, 1863. He fought in nearly all the major engagements of the Army of Northern Virginia, including Manassas, The Seven Days, Sharpsburg (Antietam), Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, Gettysburg and The Wildemess. He was in the Battles of Chickamauga, Knoxville and Bean Station, when General Longstreet took two of his divisions west to bolster the Army of Tennessee. Captain Vance surrendered his company with General Joseph E. Johnston's army in North Carolina some two weeks after Lee's surrender. John Vance served in Calvin's Company F from just after First Manassas until severely wounded in the Battle of Bentonville. During much of the war, he was detached as a staff courier to corps commander, General James Longstreet. Calvin was at war for more than four years, in eight states, during which he was wounded five times. Now the war was over--he and his cousin had seen it through from start to finish. Calvin's story deserves to be told, but will not be complete until he has his own identity. That is reason enough for "Searching for Calvin."

CROSSING THE PLAINS

By Margaret Hall Walker

(Mrs. Wyatt from Sacramento, California called the Harrison County Historical Museum in July and asked me about a slave ancestor that was in Harrison County, Texas as a slave. the slave's name was Delia and she was owned by a man named Sam Pile Hall of Harrison County Mrs Wyatt wanted to know how Delia got out to California. We did have an account of Mr. Hall leaving Harrison County and going out to California. He freed his slaves in 1849 but they didn't want to leave. When Mr. hall went to California in 1852 some of the slaves went with him. Delia is mentioned in the account of the trip out west and she apparently took care of the children and did the cooking. She settled in California, married, and raised her family there. Mrs. Wyatt came to marshall about a week after her phone call and brought us some additional material about her family history including some pictures. Here is a picture of Delia Bland, the ex-slave, and her daughter Amanda Johnson. Jimmy Oliphant)

The spring of 1852 we left our old house in the north eastern part of (Marshall) Texas, near the Louisiana line. About 200 miles from Havre (?) we stopped as Pa intended to buy a herd of cattle and further prepare for the journey of 1853. So it was in April 1853 that we started from Grayson(?) County, Texas with three large freight wagons. They had been built to order with three to four pairs of oxen hitched to each, one spring wagon with covered top and rolled curtains, for the family use, drawn by four mules (with extra mules to be substituted if needed). With the drove of stock-cattle, more (?) oxen to relieve each team when needed, also Pa was bringing to California some fine bred (?) mares, as well as plenty of extra horses for the men (the drovers). For the first hundred miles we traveled through a lovely country-forest, valley little streams and everywhere wild flowers-as our road kept near Red River.

Till we arrived at Gainsville, the place selected for all emigrants to meet. When we arrived we found many families already there-some had been there for several weeks. Such a joyous happy crowd. So far it had been like a holiday picnic, only marred by a sad event-the drowning of Mr. Burns while out swimming in the river, leaving two little fatherless boys, Frank and Buck. The sister, Rachel, took Frank and Mrs. Balan (?) took Buck, her grandson(?).

We stayed at Gainsville for a few days, every day new people were arriving. We learned that already several trains had organized and started for California. These people were not all from Texas but from States north and east of Texas. Those who had chosen the southern route to the northern (Salt Lake Route). We found that many were poorly equipped for even a short trip-and very few who had more than a train of one wagon and its contents. But no old men, not even middle aged, and few families of small children. We even saw an outfit, man and boy, each with a gun on his shoulder. One horse with a woman sitting upon it, a father had tied housewares, pans, kettles and little bags, etc. There were other outfits as meagre. But we heard later that such ______ became discouraged and stopped or turned back before out of the settlement. After we had organized we found but few had any extra stock. The morning when we pulled out of camp there were twenty yoke of our oxen hitched to other wagons. But Pa was willing for them to have them and keep them broken in while there was plenty of grazing. When they organized Reed was elected Captain, because he had been to California in '49. There was a Captain and a Lieutenant of guards. All men over eighteen were enrolled as night guards. The boys got out at daybreak on horseback and herded the stock while they grazed, and the night guard came in. Brother (12 years old or near) the Logwoods, Bacons, Reeds, etc. No excuse from guard duty except illness, and it was surprising how many chronic invalids soon appeared and how many more were discovered asleep when on duty. One rule was that each family took turns leading or heading the train. The train reached out miles. To lead was appreciated-no dust, go slow or fast as desired. We who had our team never fell into line. But Pa would drive our gray little mules past the train and go as far ahead as he dared. Then we children would get out and play about, and we would be first drinking water, etc. Then when the train had passed we got into the wagon and away we went. We always had our lunch in the seat box. But the leading was a source of much friction. Some were so slow (all the Reed crowd). Our wagon would be ready in time and wait and wait wasting the morning. But our train held together for a while after leaving Gainsville. We kept well to the north. The idea was to keep up near the heads of the rivers-they could not be crossed where they were larger. We forded the little streams, the tributaries to the rivers. But we traveled a very direct road to Fort Belnap on the Brazos River. This was a large and usually dangerous river to cross and our train was several days crossing. That first river was the last one till we reached Fort Yuma in California. There were no settlers beyond the Brazos River. From that crossing we traveled southwest, as the Colorado (Texas River) was now the only large river to cross. We forded the half dozen streams which made it.

Now we began to see a little of "the plains" and its hardships. Also we knew that we were in the Kiowas (?) and Comanche country, away from all government protection. The landscape began to change. Bands of wild horses often passed within our view. Plenty of game (deer) so far. We had had no trouble from bears and panthers, though they were in and near the rivers. We did fear trouble once when the boys brought into camp two bear cubs that they had robbed from the bear's nest. But there went up such an angry protest that the boys had to take the cubs back. Then we often had excitement and alarms when we camped sometimes hours before sundown. The boys would go fishing and hunting, and when it was discovered the mothers would set up a wail that the Indians would kill them. So the fathers would get out their guns and off they would go to find the boys. They would try to kick (?) the boys to camp-not much chance those boys would go off again.

But those night alarms! When someone would cry, "Indians". A guard would come running in-he had seen an Indian hiding behind a bush or heard an arrow. Then in a moment men were loading guns-women were crying. Some men crawled into a wagon. Then there would be a call for volunteers to go out and circle around. It did not take long for a number of men to be set down as cowards. Those groundless scares in the night were very exasperating to Pa. They made the women nervous and sick. The small children, however, slept like logs after a day's travel.

We had to travel more than half way to California to get out of Texas-from our old home it was a thousand miles. Ten miles a day was considered a good days travel for oxen pulling loaded wagons. Because of the location of wood, water and grass we could not regulate the days travel. There were broken axles, wheels, etc. So when anyone had a breakdown all had to stop till the repair was made. So there were many delays. But only once for illness-Mrs. Logwood was delirious with mountain fever and we laid over. As we arrived in the District (") of Staked Plains in New Mexico which extends up from Texas, we kept to the lower end of it. There were no streams, no water holes and no wood. The water was brackish. The stock became weary and footsore.

The Train began to break up. The rest would not put up with Reed. Pa had made an agreement with Reed to attend to the stock and straighten out all trouble so that he would be left free to look after the comfort of his family. So Pa decided to give Reed a part of the stock, and separate-and thus we got rid of the Reed crowd before we reached the Sand Hills or Sandy Desert of Texas. Just before reaching the Sand Hills a band of Comanche Indians caused us to halt and prepare for defense. But when we saw that they had their squaws with them we knew that they came in peace. So after claiming seven beeves and being given them they camped alongside us and spent the night feasting. In the morning the only parts left of the beeves were the hoofs and horns.

We found the Sand Hills bad. The water gave out and there was no feed. There was nothing green in sight for days and days. So when the River Pecos was reached our stock rushed ahead and fell down the bank and over each other. It required much work on the part of the men and drivers to get the stock out alive. Even the oxen hitched to the heavy wagons tried to gallup. night we camped on this side of the Pecos River. We pitched camp on the Pecos Bluff because the ground there was level and smooth. As the men were staking the big family tent, some one remarked, "If anyone rolls out of bed, they will not stop till they roll into the river". So in the middle of the night Mother woke up everybody and called upon them "to find Maggie" as evidently she had rolled out of bed and under the edge of the tent. Soon the camp was alive hunting for Maggie. They had to go around the bend to get down the bank to the river bed. Delia (Samuel Pike Hall had been a slave owner but freed his slaves in 1849. Many of them knew no other home and would not leave him. Delia was one of these freed slaves and clung to the Halls-she served as nurse for the children. She spent the last years of her long life in San Jose, California.) usually slept in one corner of the tent. I was awake and frightened too. But Delia in trying to find her shoes felt two children in bed-we three had slept together that night. So she cried out, "Why, here is Maggie asleep". Whereupon the camp subsided and went back to sleep.

By this time our Train had become so split up that now it was practically Pa's train. His interests were the greatest and he had the most men, wagons and stock. All the traveling was directed by him.

There was little danger from Indians in the Sand Hills country. But we knew that the mountainous country between the Pecos and Rio Grande Rivers was the home of the most cruel savages, where there was no possibility of their being pursued and captured. The Pecos River flows into the Rio Grande two or three hundred miles from its outlet in the Gulf. Two high rough mountain ranges were called the Guadalupe Mountains and Eagle Mountains, being a part of the Sierra Madre Range reaching up from Mexico. Though a direct line from El Paso to the River Pecos was not much more than two hundred miles, we had to wind around and about, through canyons, go this way and that, up over dry river beds, steep mountains on each side, camping in a gorge at night. It was frightful to think of our peril if the Indians should attack us-we were so helpless. It was after we crossed the Rio Pecos that the bachelor wagon joined us, consisting of Mr. Slaughter, two sons and a friend. We were glad to have them-such a jolly set too! It was now slow and difficult traveling. One night in the Guadalupe Mountains we had to camp without water. All was put in order for the night. The stock was herded with the horses in the middle. All the horses were hobbled and locked-Pa kept the key in his pocket.

The leader, a big mare named Patsy, wore a large bell. It was the rule to send a man in to wake up the relief guard. He did wake him up but he went to sleep again as it later proved. The other men came in when their time was up so the stock was unguarded. I slept with Pa and Mother outside and the three little ones slept in the wagon when the tent was not set up. At daybreak Logan (he was Samuel P. Hall's hired man-a loyal and faithful man) came to where we were sleeping and woke Pa up. He said, "Mr. Hall, I want out on guard. No one was there and all the horses are gone." Pa jumped up and said, "The Indians have got them". The loss of the band of horses was a great blow to Pa. The brood mares were worth thousand dollars each and we had had a fine lot of young mules. Logan had "Dank"-had to keep him tied up as he was hard to catch. Brother's (Albert Hall, Samuel P. Hall's only son at the time of Crossing of the Plains) pony was tied to the wagon because he had to go out early to herd. "Mustang" always hung around the pony and so would "Coltie" a fifteen month old colt. Pa afterwards rode the mare "Blackie". Pa got on "Dank" and followed the track of the band of horses which had disappeared. The men kept saying, "They have gone for water." He followed the tracks for five miles and came upon a pile of hobbles which had been cut off with a cold chisle, and one poor mule with five arrows in him. He still had on the hobbles. Pa pulled out the arrows and unlocked the hob bles. Incidentally the mule got well. With Pa gone to find the horses, we waited frightened-no water, and no mules for the wagon. Mother who had never taken responsibility took charge. She ordered the men to catch a filly (now had a brindle colt), harness her and "Mustang" to the wagon, yoke up the oxen and move on. Pa returned as we were about to start.

The Waco Tank was a large well or spring of water under a cave of rock. There were drawings and pictures by the Indians on the walls and overhead. But it was the most beautiful clear water we came to. We rested a while but not more than a day as we were anxious to reach the Rio Grande at El Paso-the United States had a garrison.

When we saw Yaleta (?) on the Rio Grande, a day's travel from El Paso, how glad we were. They were the first habitations and fields we had seen for months-all green and luxuriant. And the Mexicans in their white shirts and white drawers (calyones) (?) and straw hats. There we bought beets, onions, tomatoes, sweet potatoes, pears and muskmelons.

After a few days we went on to El Paso. We were still in Texas. At El Paso we found some of our old crowd and we stayed up river way for several weeks. All the old crowd came in. Some remained at El Paso (loose men). There we lost or changed some of our men. There were quite a number of Americans living there. The Mexican town or the part under Mexico was on the other side of the river. We traveled up the river for several days before we tried to cross. When we did we were in Mexico's jurisdiction. It was while camping on this side, one morning we heard old Harkins yelling for his wife. We had left him at El Paso-he wanted to get some clothes. He had to swim the river. Brother came to the river with a cow and baby calf which we called "Rocky Mountain". Somehow he got the calf on the pony and climbed up behind it. The pony swam the river with them-the river was swift.

Harkins brought us news of the tragedy which overtook the train which Slaughter and the three boys left to join us. It happened in the Guadalupe Mountains. It seems that the man at the head of the train was bringing in a lot of stock and lots of hams. He had a crowd of men too, but no women. One night the herders found the herd had become unmanageable. The Indians had made them so. They had to give up. Next morning their band of horses were gone. Twelve men well armed started after them. They followed into the mountains and soon discovered that they were in an ambush-in front, on the sides and behind. Only one man escaped alive and after three days reached the train.

We stayed in camp on the Rio Grande for two weeks to rest the stock. Then we started across the southern part of Arizona which was part of Mexico. It was afterward bought by the United States and called Gadsen (?) Ranchos. We kept in the Rio Grande Valley to Las Cruces (?) and Donna Anna. We bought green corn. It was at Las Cruces that the three boys (who joined our team with Mr. Slaughter) left us. One of them had some trouble in the town and the Mexican authorities were after them. So that night the three took their horses and blankets and went on ahead. They would write and stick the letters to the trees along the road. Mr. Slaughter would find the letters. Mr. Slaughter stayed with us till we reached San Francisco.

After leaving the Rio Grande we had high mountain ranges to cross and the country of the Apache Indians. (It was evidently in this country they hurriedly left camp one night because Indians had been discovered in the vicinity—and it was here that Maggie Hall recovered her Little Chair which had been overturned into the campfire. See story of "A Child's Chair".) It was a dry desolate section. When we found water it was salty or bad. We were misled by wet alkali sands while searching for water holes. We had passed several small Mexican garrisons. At Donna (") Anna the officer and his wife took us to their home.

At Tucson we bought peaches and quinces. Delia baked them in the oven-good! It was at Tucson that Pony was stolen. (Manuscript ends here.)

A PERSONAL NAME INDEX TO THE PARRISH REGISTER

TRINITY EPISCOPAL CHURCH NATCHITOCHES, LOUISIANA 1841-1941

In February 1966, through the kindness of the Rev. Joel Treadwell, rector of Trinity Episcopal Church, the Parish Register, which is a record of parishioners, communicants, baptisms, marriages, confirmation, burials and offerings, was made available to the Louisiana Room, Russell Library for microfilming and indexing. The following index was prepared from the microfilm copy by student assistants, working under the direction of the Louisiana Room librarian, over a period of two years.

The student assistants were instructed to follow the spelling of names just as they appeared in the Parish Register. Many of the entries were very difficult to decipher and undoubtly mistakes have been made. However, no attempt was made to correct the mispellings of the original nor to edit the entries as they appeared to be recorded.

The list, even in this imperfect form, will, it is hoped, be of use to genealogists and historians. Photocopies of pages referred to in the index can be supplied upon demand. Submitted by Fern Ainsworth.

ALLIANCE HIGH SCHOOL

1922-1947

Compiled by Jewel P. Gandy June, 1977

(Patricia Glisson of 1215 Mill Hill Landing, Richmond Hill, Ga 31324-9728, submitted this information about Alliance School. Her aunts, Willie Mae Ross, Mable Ross and Dean Corley live in the Sabine Parish area. If anyone is interested in contacting any one of them write your editor and I will send the phone numbers. Mrs. Glisson's father, E. C. Ross, class of 30-31, met and married her mother, Lula Fairly Byrd, who was a teacher at this school. Ed)

BRIEF HISTORY OF ALLIANCE HIGH SCHOOL

In the early 1920's the citizens of the communities of Evergreen, Aimwell, Lanan and Vines, felt the need for a school to educate their children to a higher educational level than the sixth and seventh grades. Rather than sending the older children away from home to boarding schools, which most families could not financially afford, they felt a local school would be better.

The members of these communities assembled and developed plans for the school. With the help of the Sabine Parish School Board, they were able to establish a consolidated school.

The transactions for the school were finalized during the year of 1922, and the first school term was the 1922-23 session.

The school was called "Alliance School" due to a suggestion of Nell Nabours. She stated that the communities had joined together in an "alliance of faith".

School opened in September of 1922 with Mr. C. P. Scurlock from Geneva, Texas, as principal. The grades that were taught were the first through the ninth.

The elementary teachers were: Miss Virgie Woods, Geneva, Texas; Mrs. Lucy Sibley, Mrs. Nell Nabours and Miss Geraldine Norris.

Class room space was not adequate for the first two years. The old building, used by Lanan School, had four small rooms that were used by the elementary grades. 441 SE 6427 SA

A partially-built, two room dwelling house, owned by Mr. Jim Nabours, that was nearby, was used for classrooms for the eighth and ninth grades.

The means of transportation was chiefly covered wagons, pulled by mules. Mr. Bill Self had a covered wagon that was driven by his son, Estelle. Cicera Merritt drove a T-model truck for use as transportation. The students from Evergreen go to, and from, school by these two means of transportation. Transportation in other communities were basically the same.

There were no outstanding events that occurred during the first term of school at Alliance. Probably the whole nine months was spent getting acquainted with one another. The students world had been a very small one prior to this date.

The school's second term of operation opened in September 1923, with a new principal, Mr. A. B. Davis, from Rosepine, Louisiana. Practically all the new teachers also were there, with the exception of Mrs. Nell Nabours and Mrs. Lucy Sibley.

More excitement prevailed during that term since Mr. Davis was active in sports. He organized a boy's basketball team. The team consisted of Glen Robert, Rollie Patrick, Pierce Sibley, Ell Patterson and Buster Nabours.

The same year the high school presented a three-act play. It was enjoyed by the people because it was something new in entertainment. Since there was no auditorium to present the play in, the front porch of the old school building was used for a stage with the audience being seated out front.

The third term of school began in September of 1924 with Mr. Davis once again serving as principal. We had a new school building, plus a new auditorium. The same year we had another pleasant experience. Siloam School, in "Hooker Bend", decided to consolidate with Alliance. Mr. Jim Ross ran the bus that carried these students to Alliance. Their first year began in September of 1924.

Things ran smoothly until shortly after Christmas, when it was announced that the school would close at mid-term due to a lack of operating funds. Some of the high school students transferred to other schools to complete their grades for the term. Some went to Zwolle, others went to Florien, Negreet, or Many. Nell and Ida Patterson were scheduled to graduate that year, and theirs would have been the first graduating class of Alliance School.

Financial conditions evidently improved in the parish school system because the school opened on schedule in September of 1925, with Mr. D. R. Sirman as principal. That was a good school year.

Lester Pilcher transferred from Negreet School to Alliance and joined the basketball team. There also was a girl's basketball team. Several games were played; but, unfortunately, no games were won.

On May 21, 1926, the first graduating class graduated from Alliance High School. There were six members: Esther Martin, Elva Sibley, Margaret Minton, Jewel Pilcher, Glen Patrick and Lester Pilcher.

In September of 1926, school opened again with Mr. D. R. Sirman as principal.

School functioned normally until almost the end of the 1926 session. The bacculereate sermon was preached on Sunday by Brother J. M. Pate. The following day (Monday) a wind storm destroyed the auditorium. Then, on Tuesday night, the graduation exercises were held in the front of the school building. The porch was used as a stage. There were two graduates: Josie Sibley and Pierce Sibley.

The Alliance School continued on, even through the mid-forties when so many of the young boys became involved in World War II and were sent on active duty.

The last graduating class was in 1946 with Mrs. Melba Bray acting as principal. There were two graduates: Eloise Wedgeworth and Rose Mary Thomas.

The last school term was the 1946-47 term. Mr. D. R. Sirman served as principal. Grades one through nine were taught.

The school was closed due to a lack of students at the end of the 1946-47 term.

That familiar spot holds a lot of pleasant, and maybe not so pleasant memories for all of us.

BOOK REVIEWS

By Herman Weiland

TITLE: THE BAGWELL FAMILY OF LOUISIANA by Christi Bagwell Stewart.

ORDER FROM: This book is not for sale, this is one of three copies.

The book begins with 3 brothers, James R. Bagwell, Furney Orin Bagwell and Thomas Waren Bagwell, all born in South Carolina ca 1795-1803. These came to Union Parish, Louisiana via Georgia and Alabama. The family scattered throughout the other North Louisiana Parishes and into Texas. Some lines are carried to the 8th generation. The family married into many North Louisiana families, so it may pay you to check the index if you feel your family is associated with the Bagwells. 1997, $8\frac{1}{2} \times 11$, 265 pp, indexed, softcover.

TITLE: THE HARDISONS, A SOUTHERN ODYSSEY by Elizabeth Shreve Ryan. ORDER FROM: The Reprint Company, P O Box 5401, Spartanburg, SC 29304.

COST: $38.50 ppd.

The author has A.B. and M.A. degrees in history. This book is written as an historical study, not only of the Hardison family, but of other families that migrated through the South in the 18th and 19th centuries. Jasper and Mary Hardison, their 7 sons and 2 daughters settled in North Carolina in what is now Martin County, around 1700. They were successful in the lumber milling business, held many public offices and fought in the Revolutionary War. Members of the family, along with many other North Carolinians, followed the lure of rich Southern land to the cotton fields of Georgia and Florida. They continued on westward to Texas on the eve of War between the States. The book is well documented and has many family letters included, which add color to the text. The majority of the book is in narrative form with the traditional ancestor charts and family sturcture charts toward the end of the book. It is fascinating to read as the author seems to know the individuals personally as she writes. I highly recommend reading the book even if there is no direct link to your own families. 1997, 6½ x 9, 469 pp, notes, illustrations, indexed, hardcover.

A fad that had a vogue in the early 1900s was dubbed "Fletcherism." It was started by one Horace Fletcher, who composed the catch phrase, "Nature will castigate those who don't masticate." Fletcher had the notion that digestion was linked to prolonged chewing of food. He promulgated the idea that every morsel that went into your mouth should be chewed at least 32 times. Many people today still believe this is a necessary step to good health.
