Greetings to all our members, friends and those fellow genealogists who read our GENIE at the "exchange sites" through-out the country

We are hoping you have all renewed your 2002 membership in the Ark-La-Tex Genealogical Society. Postage has become a factor of concern. If we do not have a current correct address we must pay to have the GENIE returned to us. Then we pay again to redirect the quarterly to the newest change of address. So PLEASE keep us advised of the address changes.

At our annual meeting we elected two trustees, Harry Lazarus is a member of the Sons of the American Revolution and an old hand at genealogical research. Cindy Millen has been "digging" for about 5 years. We welcome them and encourage them to invigorate the executive board with new ideas.

At our January meeting Mr. Robert Trudeau spoke on the origins of Mardi Gras and had us dancing in the aisles. Mr. Brook Nemacheck was our speaker in February on slave schedules on the plantations in Webster, Claibourne and Bienville Parishes. In March Jeff Girard of N.W. University spoke on the archeolological dig at Loggy Bayou.

We will have a seminar on Irish Genealogy April 12 & 13, 2002. The application form is in this GENIE. Come! Learn some new techniques on research

The events of September 11 have shaken us out of our complacency. The Atlantic and Pacific Oceans are no longer a buffer zone - they are no longer a protection from invasion by an enemy! Modern transportation and new technology in aircraft, weapons, electronic devices have erased most barriers. It has made us more aware of our vulnerability, of how fragile we are. Where our roots are buried is an anchor for who we are.

We hope to see you all at our April Irish Seminar.

Sincerely, Marqueite & Lopton

Marguerite Loftin

President

BLEEDING KANSAS - (1854-1861)

Compiled by Herman Weiland

The period from 1854 through 1861 has been referred to in Kansas history as the "Little Civil War", some writers have used the term "Bleeding Kansas" for the same period. The most crucial periods during this time and what I call "Bleeding Kansas" is the years 1856 through 1859 because of the amount of bloodshed during that period. This article is to give the background of the events leading to this period of Kansas history and to include some of the events that happened during this period and afterward as pertains to my Great Grandfather Charles F. W. Leonhardt. Many of the events depicted will be from newspaper reports or from the documents of Leonhardt, who took an active part in this period in Kansas history.

The history of Kansas during this period must be looked at through the issue of "slavery" and the willingness of the Kansas people to fight for the right to have their opinion established as the overriding opinion in determining the states position on the slavery issue.

The Constitution of the United States, Article II, Section 2, Item 3 states that "No person held to service or labor in one State, under the laws thereof, escaping into another shall in consequence of any law or regulation therein, be discharged from such labor, but shall be delivered up on claim of the party to whom such service or labor may be due". Implementing this further was the Fugitive Slave Act of February 12, 1793. It authorized an owner or his agent to secure the arrest of fugitive slaves in any state or property. If a circuit or district judge accepted either oral or written proof or the owners affadavit, the owner might receive a certificate permitting him to return his slave to another state. The act also spelled out penalties for those harboring escaped slaves. In spite of this, the Underground Railroad, beginning in the 1830's, encouraged the slave flight. The United States Supreme Court in 1842 considerably weakened the 1793 Act when it ruled the Federal statute could not compel state officials to assist in recovering runaways. (Prigg v. Pennsylvania)

The Compromise Bill of 1850, submitted in January of 1850 by Henry Clay to the Senate, contained eight compromise resolutions, this brought about one of the greatest clashes in Congress. Mainly it was John Calhoun and Jefferson Davis leading the south against the compromise and Salmon Chase and William Seward leading the antislavery movement for the compromise. One of the eight resolutions was dropped and three were combined to finally make five issues which were approved.

- 1. California would be admitted with a free-state constitution.
- 2. The Texas-New Mexico border was established with Texas giving up all her land to the Rio Grande River in return for 10 million dollars.
  - 3. Created the New Mexico and Utah Territories.
  - 4. Abolished slave trade in the District of Columbia.
  - 5. To establish a rigorous fugitive slave law.

To comply with Resolution No. 5, the Fugitive Slave Act of September 18, 1850 provided that United States Commissioners and Courts could issue warrants for the arrest of slaves and the Marshalls were required to execute this warrants. The law even said that where authorities did not respond that a posse of citizens could be used. Anyone aiding in the escape of a slave was subject to a $1,000 fine and 6 months imprisonment plus civil damages to the slave owner for up to another $1,000. The act further provided that where there was a fear of rescue of the slave that Federal officers were obligated to accompany the slave to his destination. The Act did not provide for any response from the slave in question during any of the proceedings, therefore, no slave could speak up for himself. This resulted in Negro's who had already received their free papers and may even have been property owners to be picked up and brought before proslavery Judges. Since they could not testify for themselves many were placed right back into slave status in error. The Act further provided that the Judges would receive compensation of $5.00 for cases where the slave was not returned to the claimant and $10.00 if he was returned. If there were any doubt, the choice of many Judges was to insure the higher fee for themselves.

The new regulations caused a situation where, if a slave owner needed funds, he made secret arrangements for a slave to escape, followed him after the escape until the slave would stop at someones home and if he received aid or was accepted in any way, the owners hand picked law men would surround the house, recapture the slave and arrest the individual giving aid, making him subject to the penalties of the law. Abuse of this Act was widespread, especially where there was little law or the law was crooked. specifical of terrors have been been been able to be the con-

This brings us to the Kansas-Nebraska Act of T854. States were allowed entrance to the United States as either Slave or Free. Kansas was being urged to apply for statehood and as a preliminary act the borders between the two territories of Kansas and Nebraska were established. Elections were held in Kansas on March 30, 1855 to determine whether admission would be requested as a Slave State or a Free the self will a provide the leadered and because the range of the profession in the content of the provinced cold the

The adjoining state of Missouri, which was a slave state, sent many of it's citizens into Kansas to vote for admission as a slave state. The vote, of course, came in for admission as a slave state. The free state people were in an uproar not only in Kansas but all over the North. A proslavery constitution was written at Lecompton in 1857 and another in 1858. The constitution under which Kansas was finally admitted to the Union was written at Wyandotte (now absorbed into Kansas City) in 1859. It excluded slavery and was approved by Congress. The absence of many Congressmen from the southern states already seceding from the Union made this passage of the Kansas Constitution quite easy. The state of the s

Border Ruffians from Missouri had attracked Lawrence, Kansas in May 1856. This was the principal Free-State settlement in Kansas. Many areas of the town were looted and burned. The anti-slavery leader, John Brown, struck back and killed five pro-slavery people near Pottawatomie Creek. During the months following many men on both sides were driven from their homes and shot, towns were looted and burned. John Brown's son Frederick was killed in August 1856 during one of these raids. জিলৈক প্ৰক্ৰেন্ত্ৰ লৈ কুমুক্তৰ) ভাল সেৱ

The "Old Colony Memorial" newspaper of Plymouth, Massachusetts, published on May 12, 1855, has the following: The Emigrant Aid Society was procuring subscriptions to the New England Aid Society, which aimed to secure the blessings of Liberty in the territory from the Missouri River to the Rocky Mountains, for more than 3,000 New England men who had already emigrated, wanting Kansas to become a free state. It is said that without the efforts of Mr. Eli Thayer and his Emigrant Aid Society that Kansas would have a slave state.

The same newspaper dated June 28, 1856: Kansas Meeting at Davis Hall - A large and enthusiastic meeting of the citizens of Plymouth, was held at Davis Hall on Friday evening, June 20th. (The article is rather lengthy and several speakers told of the atrocities in Kansas. The meeting closed with several Resolutions. That they were indignant at the outrages committed on Free State Settlers, that the Kansas settlers had their sympathy, encouragement and material aid) The meeting was then dissolved. This was but one of many meetings seeking support for the Kansas settlers and for funds to get new settlers to move to Kansas in the court of the last the same and the last the last

Charles F. W. Leonhardt, the Great Grandfather of Herman Weiland was in attendance at this meeting. He had fought with Louis Kossuth in the Austro/Hungarian Wars of 1848-1849 and was in the Prussian National Guard until 1852. He came to the United States on May 19, 1854 and became a citizen on December 3, 1856. He felt the call to make the trek to Kansas and started taking action to sell the Plymouth Rock Gymnasium, which he owned, and make that trip. He did apply for monetary aid for the trip and received $50.00. He arrived in Kansas in March of 1857. He was an eloquent speaker and immediately began speaking in support of the free state movement. In June of 1857 he was elected to the Free State legislature of Kansas and his first speech before the Legislature was one which reportedly "took the delegates by storing the s บุทธ ขึ้น ตรใช้เป็น ปกพัทธราสาจอร์ได้ 10 กล้าโดยสาร จะได้ (Lepton ตรา (Lepton ประการ สมาชิก (Lepton ) รั

He allied himself with the "Danites", and wasted no time in making his mark in Kansas history. The Kansas State Historical Society has on record that Charles Leonhardt led the group of men who ambushed then Territorial Governor Shannon's guards. A participant in the massacre came forward in 1900, 44 years later, and detailed those events to the authorities stating that it was in the fall of 1856, we know this is in error and if it truly happened was in the early fall of 1857, since it is well documented that Charles Leonhardt was in Plymouth, Massachusetts during the fall of 1856.

The United States government during this time did very little to actually stop the bloodshed in Kansas. President Franklin Pièrce appointed Andrew Reeder as the first territorial governor in June 1854. When Reeder objected to the Missourian participation in the "free vs. slave" elections, Pierce removed him and appointed Wilson Shannon in August 1855. Shannon was very pro-slavery and his appointment caused an escalation of guerilla warfare in the territory. Shannon resigned after a year in office and several temporary governors served until John W. Geary was appointed his replacement in September 1857. Geary did try to stop the fighting but received no promise of support from then president -elect. James Buchanan who did not believe the Missourians were mostly responsible for the breakdown of law and order in Kansas. Geary resigned the day Buchanan was sworn in to office. James Denver was appointed to replace Geary in February 1858 and served through November 1858. He could not get along with the free staters and even though the Kansas Free State Constitution passed at Lecompton, he tried to convince President Buchanan that the majority of Kansans opposed it. He finally resigned under pressure and Buchanan appointed Samuel Medary to replace him. Medary served until Lincoln became president.

General James H. Lane was sent to Kansas in an attempt to restore order and stop the border raids between Missouri and Kansas. General Lane was looking for "a few good men" and chose Charles Leonhardt as his Adjutant, he then was given the rank of Colonel on September 1, 1857, and was given a Regiment of German soldiers to Command. That assignment did not last long. He was sent back east with Rev. Daniel Foster "lecturing on Kansas affairs" about October 1, 1857. He returned from the east on December 18, 1857 and immediately took part in the Battle of Sugar Mound, Mound City, Kansas on December 19, 1857. He continued to serve with General Lane where needed and also with his new found friend John Brown. A list of John Brown's followers was found in his papers, now at the Kansas State Library, in Topeka.

That portion of Kansas history was over by 1859, John Brown had gone to Cedar City, Iowa in 1858 to train a group of men for a special project which we now know was the raid on Harpers Ferry, near Charles Town, Virginia (now West Virginia).. Charles Leonhardt it is thought, accompanied him to Iowa and the training area was set up on the farm of Griffith Lewis. Griffith and his family had known the Brown's when they both lived in Ohio. Griffith was a Quaker but had been actively involved in the Under Ground Railroad as a Station Master in Ohio and in Iowa.

Charles writes in his memoirs that John discussed his plans for the raid on Harpers Ferry with Griffith and that Griffith tried to talk him out of it. John Brown, when he knew he was leaving for Virginia, left his saddle with Griffith Lewis, this saddle is now in the Kansas State Museum as a gift passed through by Griffith's daughter Esther. John Brown and his men departed for Virginia separately so as not to arouse much interest with a rendevous to be made there by a certain date, the majority of his men had arrived earlier than expected and the anticipated date for the raid on Harpers Ferry was moved up by about 10 days.

Some have tried to state that Charles Leonhardt was at the Harpers Ferry raid on October 16, 1859 or shortly after but we know this was not likely to have happened.

Charles Leonhardt appears then in Cincinnati, Ohio where he was enrolled in the University of Cincinnati Law School for the 1859-60 school term and graduated in April 1860. He received a Notary Public License on October 15, 1859, in Cincinnati, so we know he could not have been at Harpers Ferry the following day. Upon graduation from the law school he returned to Kansas and took the "Last Train" of slaves to Cedar City, Iowa. He set up a law practice there in Cedar City and then married Esther Lewis, the daughter of Griffith Lewis on April 18, 1861. After a short period of service in the Civil War

3430 5. . .

1861-2 the family moved back to his beloved Kansas where he practiced law in several locations and then was a City Judge in Louisville. He was placed on the Kansas Historical Commission in 1879 and served in that capacity until shortly before his death at Paola, Kansas in 1884. He had many manuscripts of the speeches he made while stumping for support of the Free-State movement and tried to find a publisher for them but to no avail. Most of these are now in the Kansas State Library in Topeka. He made every effort to preserve that part of Kansas History known as "Bleeding Kansas".

The children of John Brown and Griffith Lewis continued to maintain a close relationship through the years. When John's son Owen Brown died in Pasadena, California two of Griffith's sons who were my Great Uncles, Daniel Wood Lewis and Emlen Lewis, both made presentations at the Memorial Service. The Pasadena Daily News, January 31, 1898, contains the full text of all the speeches made at that service.

Found: Another Piece of the Puzzle by Carole Neal

"He died overseas during World War I." That is what I had always heard about my great uncle John Jamison, my maternal grandmother's twin brother and her only sibling.

There were conflicting family stories as to where he was buried. My mother believed he was buried in the U.S. while her sister believed he was buried overseas. The Jamison line is my most challenging. My grandmother, Pemilla [Jamison] Seals Fairchild, and John Jamison were born March 28, 1896 in Camden, Arkansas. Their parents were Annie Warren and John Jamison. Very little information is known about John Jamison, the elder.

As genealogists, we have learned that instinct, hunches, and just plain luck contribute to our successes. In the fall of 1999 I attended back-to-back weekend annual conferences: the Afro-American Historical and Genealogical Society (AAHGS) Conference in Washington, D.C. and the Family Reunion Institute Conference in Philadelphia, PA. Sandwiched in between, I researched at the National Archives (NARA). My sole focus was to research Freedmen Bureau records. However, my elusive ancestors remained just that. I found nary a mention in Freedmen Bureau records of any of my ancestors! To say I was frustrated and disappointed is putting it mildly. My primary area of research is Northern Louisiana. A NARA archivist told me Freedmen Bureau records tend to be more plentiful in areas where the Army was prominent. In Louisiana, that would the New Orleans area and other southern and central Louisiana locales.

I then decided to research the Southern Claims Commission records. I had done some preliminary research, unsuccessfully, of these microfilmed records previously at the NARA regional branch in San Bruno, California, but was eager to research the actual records housed at NARA. One day I took the shuttle to the NARA II building in College Park, MD. Struck out again! I'd anticipated finally finding some mention or record of at least one of my ancestors, but came away empty-handed. One of the archivists walked me back into the stacks to double-check for records pertaining to Louisiana. We found little for that state and he mentioned that unfortunately a lot of the records had been destroyed before their historical value was recognized.

Before I'd met with the archivist and while waiting in the reception area, I browsed through the magazines on display and, I believe, fate drew me to the summer 1999 edition of Prologue, NARA's quarterly magazine. I scanned the table of contents and saw an article entitled "World War I Gold Star Mothers Pilgrimages." It told about a government program that paid the travel expenses to the gravesites for mothers and widows whose sons and husbands had died as members of the American Expeditionary Forces (AEF) during the war. The article went on to describe the "Graves Registration Service (GRS)" which was enacted in 1917. For each soldier who died overseas, a GRS file was created.

I became excited because I immediately thought of great uncle John. In 1998, I had written to Arlington National Cemetery to ask if there were a record of John Jamison being buried there. In my letter I included possible other spellings of the surname such as Jamerson and Jimmerson. The response I received from Arlington was that they had no one by that name buried in the cemetery.

그리아의 얼마 그들이 나는데 그렇게 그렇다.

I didn't get a chance to finish reading the article at NARA II that day as I was interrupted when the archivist was ready to meet with me. Back in D.C. I bought a copy of the magazine at the NARA bookstore and finished reading it after I returned home from my trip. I then wrote and requested a copy of the GRS file for John Jamison. I addressed my request to:

Military Textual Reference Branch (NWCTM) National Archives 8601 Adelphi Road BBU1 Ageiphi Koad College Park, MD 20740-6001

My letter included a statement that the information was being requested for my family research project and I provided the following information about the deceased:

- Branch of service
  Date and place of birth
  Name of sibling

Name of mother and Place of residence and the state of th About two weeks later, received a reply which included an order form, NATF Form 72. completed the form and mailed it in along with my payment. The method of payment determines where the form and payment are sent. Payments by check are sent to an address in Atlanta, GA; payments by credit card are sent to an address in Washington, D.C. Francisco Company

Soon after submitting the form and payment, I received a packet containing copies of the information in the GRS file for John Jamison. From that information I learned:

- His date and place of death to be April 18, 1919, Base Hospital No. 101. He was only 23 years of age when he died was a second process of a second process
- The cause of death was Peritonitis Tuberculosis. Interestingly, I'd learned at a recent genealogy seminar that tuberculosis was the leading cause of death at the tum of the
- The name of the American cemetery in France where he is buried, as well as the gravesite location, and that an identification tag was buried with the body and a tag also was fastened to the stake used as a grave marker.
- His rank in the Army was Private
- His unit and company was 808th Company, Transportation Corps
- Serial number
- The War Risk Insurance information listed his mother, Mrs. Annie Criner, as beneficiary.
- Initially, he was buried at the American Base Cemetery #21, St. Nazaire, France.
- In November 1921 the body was disinterred and subsequently reburied at Oise-Aisne American Cemetery, Seringes-et-Nesles, Aisne, France.

According to the file, a year's time elapsed between disinterment and reburial. I did not find information in the file that gave a reason for the rebuild or the time lapse. I hope one day to travel to France and visit his gravesite.

A COST OF THE STREET

Also in the file were copies of correspondence between the quartermaster general of the War Department and my great-grandmother. She was the next of kin since he was not married nor had any children. The correspondence mostly consisted of her responding to questions on a form, but there was one handwritten letter she wrote to the quartermaster general. She initially indicated she would make the pilgrimage and that she desired his remains to be returned to the U.S. for burial. However, in later communications she indicated her health prevented her from making the trip and that she did not want his body moved. I suspect she probably was a bit overwhelmed by all of the paperwork; and the thought of leaving the small town of Homer, Louisiana, and traveling to New York to board a steamer to travel "across the water" to France was a bit much.

Not too long ago I spoke with my uncle, my mother's youngest brother, and mentioned this information. He recalled that during the Depression the family was having a very hard time making ends meet. My grandmother was widowed in 1930, left with eight children ranging in age from 16 years to four weeks. This uncle was the newborn baby. He said "without that $60 a month check" that my great-grandmother received as her son's beneficiary, he didn't know how they would have made it and, as a young boy, could recall hearing his mother in the other room crying and great-grandmother Annie trying to comfort her, saying "It's going to be all right."

Hearing his comments reinforced my determination to dig up copies of any pension files for John-Jamison. Previously, I had mailed a request to the Department of Veterans Affairs for such files but did not receive a reply. After speaking with my uncle and now knowing for certain a pension was paid, I sent a follow-up request. The VA's reply came stating they needed more information in order to search. In March 2001, I re-sent my request providing any and all information I had. In late October 2001, I received a packet from the VA containing copies of the contents of the insurance claim file for great uncle John. Information in the file has provided me with additional research leads for both my Warren and my Jamison lines.

(A letter recently acquired from my wife Larri's cousin, John Geary, helped to piece together a part of Bossier Parish history. It was obtained while visiting the Gearys in McLean, Virginia, in conjunction with a Vance Family Association meeting in nearby Winchester. John lived on Cash Point Plantation in the Vanceville community during his childhood. He inherited this humorous – at least from present perspective – letter through his Vance-Logan family line.)

The Vanceville tournament was a contest between local knights competing for the honor of crowning their queens and maids of honor. This medieval competition in which knights on horseback galloped a course gathering rings on their lances was popular in the Bossier Parish towns of the 1880's. At least two of these events were held in the little community of Vanceville, Louisiana, on the Red River not far from Shreveport. The 1889 event drew the attention of the Bossier Banner in its July 4th edition.

and the second of the second o I am glad to hear you got back safe & sound to Clinton, though I was sorry you did not go to see the falls. Our grand tournament is over, our visitors all gone. Jule Butler was the last, he left only a few minutes ago, they all came Wednesday & today is Monday so he at least had a nice little trip. Jim Logan was the only one of our boys got a crown, he gave the crown, sash, fancy pin & the plumes too, I believe to Emmy Jennie got the boobie crown, was her knight, instead of taking her to the ball as he ought, he took a Miss Clara Prescott & was too late to dance in the Royal set. Jennie, very properly I thought would not dance at all with him that night. Mr. Vickers & Whit worked like Trogans for it, they were both mad all day & swear they will never, no never again have any thing to do with one, Mrs. Vickers told them they were both liars, that if the boys wanted to get up another tomorrow, they would be just a(s) eager.

All the boys are down on George, he asked them not to have any stands or let anyone sell any thing on the grounds, they could have sold the right for $25.00 & refused on his account & then he opened the old Shady Grove store & sold beer & everything else to drink. The boys asked George not to do it & even got up a petition but Mr. Zeigler left & George said he would be d---if petitions or anything but death could stop him. Bessie brought two very small cakes & that was every thing she sent, she took a big champaigne basket home. Mrs. Vickers saw there was so much that she asked the ladies to give the Club a cake or half of one to put up for the night. you ought to hear her account of how they treated her. Mrs. Wesley Arnold said no indeed, she did not purpose to feed the Club, if they wanted cake, let them go & buy it. Mrs. John Arnold said they must ask old black Sally, Sally said, go long away, her Lina was to get a crown & she must see them boys ride.

· 1886年 - 新州縣 1986年 - 1886年 - 1886年 - 18 7 negro women went in Mrs. Vickers parlor & took her & Mrs. Staten's rocking chairs with nice clean taties & brought them out on the gallery to nurse their babies. The cakes Mrs. V saved for the night, she turned over to Bessie, she put them in the dressing room instead of out with the ice cream, she asked they or a few of them to her house to eat them on Friday night. This is hear say. I did not see any of it, it has about broke up the club, they say they will dance this money out, break up the club & reorganize. Charlie Wimbush made everybody mad, he and Frank came near fighting in the ball room, Mr. Vickers came near beating him about his remarks about Jennie, in fact all the club, to a man, took it up but he lied out of it. Jennie had taken so much pains, painting the boys sashes & tied them on some one remarked how nice it was in her to take so much pains. Charley said, oh! Jennie was only courting notoriety. All the club was fighting mad but Mr. V got the first chance at him, he denied it & they let it drop but all believe he said it. Thever saw Jimmie Logan as angry as he was, A Control of the Contr

Maggie Cade spent several days & do you know, she calls me Aunt Sallie, that is something new, Jennie went home with her, Maggie sent me some lovely moss & flowers. I though she was fair, but she is very dark, the blackest hair I ever saw, she dresses in horrible taste, she wore a lilac waist one day. I spent Saturday with Mrs. V to see her kin folks off & to console her, she spent Sunday with me. Jimmie Logan broke the thumb on his right hand last night in a playful scuffle with the boys, he can't use that hand at all & Ed hurt his back. I wonder how they can do so. I enjoyed my part of the frolic, everything went smoothly, even the girls brought gowns, all but Sallie. She hunted in the wardrobe & found one & never said a word about it. Sallie wanted to leave & go to Mrs. Cash's but the girls refused to pack her valise, so she got Whit to send her to Mrs. Cash's on Friday. Mrs. Cash gave a dining to Mr. Middleton's sister, Sallie says she told her it was an honor to have a visit from her & overwhelmed her with civilities, Sallie was so astonished to hear Mrs. Cash had a son, don't you know she had heard of Pat Cash? Dinner is ready, I wanted to finish up the frolic. Expect you have enough.

The Bossier Banner made mention of three tournaments held in the summer of 1886. A brief announcement was made in June of a tournament to be held at Lovely Point. The tournament marshals at Collinsburg published the rules of their September event for three consecutive weeks, but it received no after-event attention by the paper. (Lances were to be eight feet in length, posts would be fifty feet apart; and a lapse of twelve seconds was allowed from start to last post). The Knox Point tournament in July, which included glass ball shooting and music by the Shreveport brass band, was attended by a Banner reporter, and was well reported. The knight, "Roses," Mr. Hugh E. Atkins, bested the other ten knights to crown his queen, Miss Gracie Poole. The Vanceville tournament of 1891 got a brief invitation announcement, but no follow-up mention. It seems likely that these medieval contests of the 1880's and 1890's were more prevalent than were reported.

J. P. VANCE AND HIS SUCCESSION By Dale Jennings

The transfer of the state of the second

Joseph P. Vance composed his brief will at Plain Dealing in Bossier Parish, Louisiana, on November 18, 1901. "I give Dr. Tom Vance my Plain Dealing property; I want Eliza James to have the remainder of my real estate, and to hold absolutely. I have appoint Dr. Tom Vance my sole executor of my will." He made an endorsement on the back. "I want to pay them that helped me in my old and helpless days." (signed) Jo Potiler Vance. A bachelor, Joseph died without forced heirs at his home in Plain Dealing on May 21:1902. He was survived by his brother Tom Vance of nearby Webster Parish; and in South Carolina by two brothers, Samuel F. and William T. Vance; a sister, Mrs. Laura Irby, and a nephew by one of his two brothers who died in the Civil War, Henry Y. Vance. His South Carolina relatives hired a local lawyer, Joannes Smith, who on their behalf opposed the probate of the will: "They allege that the legacy made to said Eliza James, a full woman of color, is void and illegal, and ought to be set aside, because said Eliza James is the bastard daughter of the deceased, begotten by him from a colored woman named Jane; that said Eliza James was born during the year, 1862, and is by law incapacitated from receiving anything by testiment." Although Eliza had legal representation, the court ruled in favor of her opponents.

Joseph Vance's Scots Irish ancestors were probably part of the eighteenth century migration down the "Great Road" out of Pennsylvania into the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia. Many of the Vances, to include Samuel Vance, settled in North Carolina. Several of Samuel's sons, including Nathaniel and Samuel, Jr., went into northwestern South Carolina after the American Revolution. Many of Nathaniel's descendants – the first in 1840 — migrated from there directly to Bossier Parish, Louisiana. The only descendants of Samuel Vance, Jr., to remove to Louisiana were two grandsons, Joseph Potiler (Patillo) and Thomas Jefferson, the sons of Robert S. Vance. "Jo" Vance came to Bossier Parish at about age twenty-seven in 1854. Earlier Vances to the area had forged business, social and marital ties to the Gilmers, a prominent family of planters in the area of Collinsburg and present-day Plain Dealing. J. P. Vance was enumerated with George E. Gilmer, as Gilmer's overseer, in the census of 1860. The 1860 slave census shows that Gilmer possessed 134 slaves. Joseph Vance had none, and was probably never to own any.

When the state of Louisiana went out of the Union in April 1861, George Gilmer did not wait for Bossier units to form, but went across the Red River and joined a Caddo Parish company. Joseph's brother Doctor Tom Vance, a recent arrival from South Carolina, and an ardent secessionist, did the same. J. P. joined the Marks Guards, a Bossier company, in January 1863. His regiment made up a part of the Confederate forces contesting the Federal occupation of South Louisiana. He was captured in heavy fighting in the Battle of Irish Bend on Bayou Teche outside of Franklin, Louisiana, in April 1863. He was exchanged; came back to Bossier Parish, joined the Bossier Guards, a cavalry company just formed, and served with that unit until the end of the war.

Although never attaining the affluence of the Gilmers and some of the other Vances, Jo Vance did accumulate a considerable amount of property. Described as a farmer, he typically would have managed his several farms, share cropped out to Black tenants. In the 1870 census, J. P. Vance is shown to be a 40-year-old farmer and sole occupant of his household. Of eight consecutive Black neighbors, five were Smith families (the enumerator made no distinction between Blacks and Mulattos). Typically, White landowners lived amidst their sharecropper families. One of these households was headed by Jane Smith, who was 25, "keeping house," and born in Alabama. Jane's only other household member was Eliza Smith, age 10, born in Louisiana.

The Smiths were probably former slaves of the Gilmers, and related by blood or marriage. Forty-five-year-old "M." Smith was head of the household adjacent to J. P. Vance. The 1880 census would show by family composition that a "Marywether" Smith of that decade was the same person as the M. Smith of 1870. He and Jane were both shown to have been born in Alabama by the 1870 census, but in Georgia by the census of 1880. The Gilmers had sold their land in these states and removed to Louisiana with their slaves about forty years before the latter date. George Gilmer made his will just before leaving for the war in 1861. He named several slaves whom he wished to go to his cousin, Peachy R. Gilmer, rather than into his estate. One of these was the slave Meriwether. George Edwin Gilmer was killed in the Battle of Sharpsburg (Antietam) in Maryland.

Eliza "Vance" was married on December 26, 1878, to S. T. James. Named as Eliza Vance on the marriage certificate, she erroneously signed it "Eliza James." J. P. Vance sold several tracts of land to Jane, Eliza, and S. T. James between 1879 and the time of his death. In the conveyances, Eliza was named as Eliza Smith, wife of S. T. James, or Turner James. The total acreage was approximately 450 acres and was typically sold in 40 and 80-acre parcels for from $200 to $400. During the same period, J. P. sold several other tracts of land to White buyers. The 1880 census shows "Turner" James as a 21-year-old Mulatto, born in Alabama, and his wife, "Liza," as a 16-year-old Mulatto, born in Louisiana, with a 1-year-old daughter, "Burdie," also born in Louisiana. Jane Smith, living nearby, is shown as a 45-year-old widowed Black woman, enumerated with J. P. Vance, relationship to head of household, cook.

J. P. Vance's succession was contested at length. When the annulment of Eliza's legacy was upheld in district court, S. T. James appealed to the state supreme court. The legal standard by which illegitimate children could inherit as "natural children" was that the father must have acknowledged them to be his. Witnesses testified that it was generally understood and reputed that Eliza was the daughter of Vance, and she had been heard called Eliza Vance in the Black neighborhood. However, only one witness testified to having heard this from Mr. Vance. Mr. R. E. Lee, a White friend, recalled that in 1894 or 1895, J. P. had lamented to him about being alone and without family. He blamed the doctors, who had advised him not to marry because a disease he had contracted early in life might afflict his children. He said he knew now that the doctors did not know what they were talking about, as his children were not afflicted, "for there is Turner's wife as healthy as anybody."

ODS retractionable in ROBE 1990

The supreme court upheld the lower court in its interpretation of the law. A casual inference to the fatherhood of a child did not suffice as an open acknowledgement. By declining to testify, Eliza did not help her cause.

In 1904, S. T. James sued the succession for $1,000. This was for extensive assistance given Mr. Vance during the last several years of his life, for which the family was not compensated. The suit was defended in court by the attorney for the executor, on behalf of the Vance heirs. The defense established that J. P. Vance had been quite well off, and was always known to pay his debts promptly. He had been a successful farmer. and a partner in "Keeth and Vance," a store in Collinsburg, during much of the 1880's By the mid-1890's, he had divested much of his property and retired to a farm near Plain Dealing, renting part and farming out the remainder on shares. About two years before his death, his health declined further and he moved into town. The defense sought to persuade the jury that the plaintiff and his family had already been well compensated through the purchase of considerable property from Mr. Vance at far less than its true value. Mr. James enumerated the work and personal care that he, his wife, daughter Bertie, and son-in-law, "Lee," had rendered Mr. Vance while he was enfeebled. He testified that his motivation was that Mr. Vance was in need of help; was the father of his wife and a good man; and that he believed he would be remembered and compensated later. Under examination, Turner James stated that he had paid fully for the eighty acres and gin purchased from the deceased; that his investment in a livery stable in Shreveport was small; and that he did not know how much money he had in the Merchants & Farmers Bank, but he could find out. Mr. James acknowledged that two of his four children, daughters, were off in school in a distant state.

The case was decided in favor of the defense and against Mr. James. He appealed to the appellate court, which reversed the lower court's decision. James was awarded a compensation of $300 and the cost of litigation in both courts. S. T. James later bought 400 of the 520 acres denied Eliza, when it was sold by the South Carolina heirs at Sheriff's succession sale.

Eliza is buried in an iron-fenced family section of the Mt. Zion Cemetery just north of Plain Dealing. Her distinctive shaft configured grave marker reads, "Eliza V. / Wife of S. T. James / Born in 1862 / Died Sep 1, 1908." Just outside the fence is a nice, broken headstone with clasped hands in relief, which reads, "Jane Smith / (Died) Feb 18, 1892 / Aged about 65 years." Also found inside the fence are three other gravestones. One reads, "Pattie / Daughter of S. T. & E. V. James / Mar 23, 1891 / Feb 22, 1907." Another, "Bertie / Wife of C. A. Lee / Nov 4, 1879 / Jan 23, 1907 / INFANT." The other reads, Laura / Daughter of S. T. & E. V. James / Wife of John Turner / Oct 16, 1883 / Oct 11, 1905." When Eliza died in 1908, she was survived by her husband, a son, two daughters, and two of Bertie's children. J. P. Vance is buried a short distance south of Mt. Zion, among a great many Gilmers and Vances, in the oldest section of the Plain Dealing town cemetery. The cemetery began as the Gilmer-Vance family burying ground just behind George O. and Martha Gilmer's Plain Dealing Plantation home. The site is now located on the northern edge of the little town of Plain Dealing.
